

Characterization of clinical and environmental E. coli isolates from an integrated turkey operation

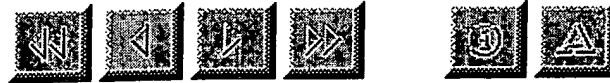

S. Altekruse¹, F. Elvinger², J. Eifert³,
D. Ward², C. DebRoy⁴, F.W. Pierson²,
N. Sriranganathan²

1. FDA, Center for Veterinary Medicine

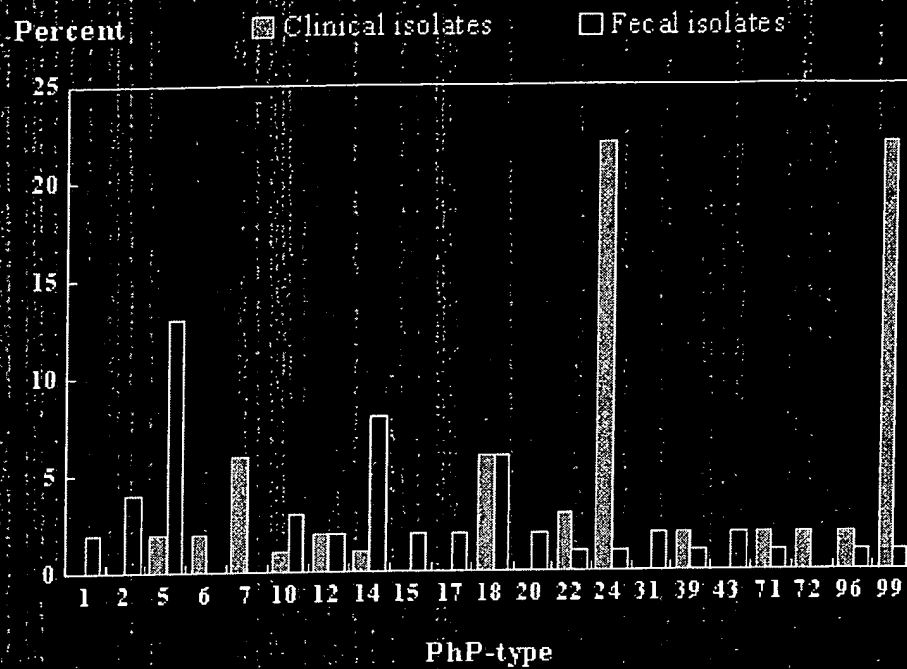

2. Virginia-Maryland Regional College of Veterinary Medicine 3. Virginia
Tech, Department of Food Science

4. Pennsylvania State University, E. coli Reference Laboratory

Biochemical phenotypes of clinical and fecal E. coli isolates from an integrated turkey operation

Conclusions

Avian Pathogenic E. coli

- Gentamicin and sulfamethoxazole resistance common among APEC strains
- These traits were not a useful marker for identifying APEC serogroups in fecal droppings
- Biochemical phenotypes of fecal and clinical strains were not similar

